

CHAPTER V

CONCLUSION AND SUGGESTION

5.1 Conclusion

Based on the research findings and discussion in the previous chapter, it can be concluded that:

1. The use of local short stories was effective to increase vocabulary of ten grade students' of SMA Seminari St. Rafael Oepoi. This can be proved from the significant difference between students post-test and pre-test results where the score in the post-test was higher than the score in the pre-test.
2. Students seem to be always involved in the lesson when researcher uses local short stories.
3. Furthermore, giving local short stories makes them interested in learning English in easily understood vocabulary.

5.2 Suggestion

This research has implication for learning English. Hopefully, those findings would help the students to find an interesting way of learning the vocabulary of English and also, would help all English teachers so that they can make an interesting way of the vocabulary learning process in the classroom. The further research needs to be conducted more on local short stories from Indonesia
