

CHAPTER V

CONCLUSION AND SUGGESTION

Considering the data analysis in the previous chapter, the writer makes some conclusions to the readers as in following:

5.1 Conclusion

This chapter presents the conclusion of the study. It is like a summary of what has been found in the data analysis. In this research the writer found out Terms of Address in Nangaroro Dialect in Nagekeo, they are terms of address used in family relationship/Kinship term and terms of address used in non family relationship. In Nangaroro they always address someone based on their family relationship. Nangaroro society uses the forms of address to keep their relationship with other people. Term of address is the term used by people in various parts of the world to address people. Some terms of address in family relationship that can be used in non family relationship are like: Ine “mother”, Ema “father”, nala “brother”, weta “sister “, ari “brother”. They used these term because the addresser have relationship with the addressee, their degree of familiarity in relation to each other.

Nangaroro society more use the terms of address more in family relationship to address people who are unfamiliar. They can address people based on age, and social status. In social status they address based on higher status, same and lower status.

5.2 Suggestion

Based on the result of the data analysis, the writer gives some suggestions which are expected to be useful, as follows:

1. Other linguistics researchers are suggested to do the research the same topic to confirm and to elaborate.
2. The Nangaroro people are suggested to keep speaking their language, especially the terms of address to keep good social relationship in communication.
